TIPS:

- Identify forwarded messages through the "Forwarded" tag that appears above them. It will help you check if your contacts are the source of the content you receive
- Corroborate the source of videos, audios and photos. These can be manipulated to provoke specific emotions and cause alarm. If you have doubts about the veracity of information, check it in official sources
- Take a critical position when faced with information that confirms your beliefs. News that seems exaggerated or unsubstantiated are often false information
- If you identify some information is false, notify the sender to stop them from spreading the message
